

Dr John
Adegboye

Dr John Adegboye MBBS, FWACP, FRANZCP is a Consultant Psychiatrist who specialises in General Adult Psychiatry and Addictive Disorders, or Substance Use Disorders. He also provides specialist treatment for Anxiety and Mood Disorders, ADHD and Personality Disorders, and offers Workers Compensation claims, Medico Legal Assessments and Telehealth Psychiatry.

Dr Adegboye's approach to the treatment of his patients is holistic with a combination of psychotherapy and pharmacotherapy. He is also very cognisant of the spiritual needs of his patients, and considers this when offering treatment.

After graduating in Nigeria in 1988, Dr Adegboye completed his postgraduate study in Psychiatry at the West African College of Physicians in Psychiatry in 1997. He then relocated to Australia, and trained in the West Australian public sector as Registrar until 2004, then gaining his Australian Fellowship at the Royal Australian and New Zealand College of Psychiatrists (RANZCP).

Dr Adegboye worked extensively in the public sector for ten years and during this time, in 2012 he also commenced working with Abbotsford Private Hospital. In 2016, he commenced his dedicated full time private practice at Abbotsford Psychiatry.

Dr Adegboye is an accredited Member of the Faculty of Addiction Psychiatry and is also a member of the special interest group, Intellectual Disability Psychiatry. He promotes good cultural awareness and recognises the importance of working with families and carers for the treatment of his patients.
